OBITUARY

Death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Payne on fourth, evening Saturday morning and took their little son, aged 1 year and 4 months. The little fellow had been sick but a short time, being taken down on the Sunday previous, with summer complaint and although everything possible was done for him he passed away after suffering for six days. He was the only son, and exceedingly high. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Mr. McNeil and a large gathering of friends of the parents assembled there to the cemetery where the little body was laid at rest.

One of the oldest residents of Arizona district passed peacefully away on Thursday last at Edmonton, Alta., when Louis McDonald, well known to the late John Williams died after a lingering illness at the age of seventy-two years and seven months.

Mrs. Williams who was born in the Isle of Jersey, when ten years old came to Canada making the journey by sailing vessel in six weeks. She lived in Western Ontario till the spring of 1882 when with her family moved west, taking up a homestead in Arizona. Four years after coming west Mr. Williams died and the care of a large family and the management of the farm was thrown upon Mrs. Williams. She lived on the farm, which she owned at the time of her death, till a couple of years ago when she decided to spend the rest of her days with her family now living in different parts of the west. She was visiting with her daughter Mrs. D. Tidberry, Edmonton, when she died.

Mrs. Williams was the mother of ten children, five sons and five daughters and had forty-six grand children and nine great grand children. Her family are:

John W. Williams, Vancouver, C. Mrs. D. Tidberry, Edmonton, Alta., Mr. W. Williams, (deceased), Mrs. J. Wells, (deceased), Mr. D. D. Williams, Clareholm, Alta., Mr. T. D. Williams, Edmonton, Alta., Mrs. J. W. Smith, Austin, Man., Mrs. E. Campbell, Vancouver, B. C., Mrs. F. Williams, (deceased), Mrs. G. Williams, Clareholm, Alta., Mr. G. Williams, Lethbridge, Alta.

The remains were brought to Calgary by Mr. D. Tidberry and Mrs. F. Williams when they returned home on Monday afternoon. The members of the family present were Mr. W. Harding and Mrs. J. W. Smith, Austin, with the son and son-in-law, Edmonton, who were accompanied. A large number of friends and neighbors from Arizona were also in attendance to pay their last respects to one who was always respected and loved by all who knew her.

Carmangay Again Winner

Carmangay again won the district prize for the best exhibit at the Lethbridge fair this year. Last year Carmangay district carried off the first prize and the Buchanan Cup and now they have carried off first honors for this year. The Lethbridge Herald has the following to say:

Carmangay is situated in a section where the crops ripen quicker than in most sections and the yield is always among the top notches. The exhibit at the fair is not only varied showing grains and grasses of the finest kind but there is a surprising display of roots and garden products showing that the soil of the Carmangay district can grow the very best. The display is arranged with care to artistic effect and that the good things of Carmangay had a hand in it is highly apparent by the name of Carmangay being displayed in large letters made of grains of wheat. It must have meant a lot of patient work, but the reward came in the form of a prize. The exhibit was arranged by Mayor McNaughton and Town Clerk Wilson and it is a tribute to their discerning eyes.

The Board of Trade of Carmangay is deserving of commendation for the enterprise shown in conjunction with the district agricultural society and the honors won have spurred ambition to repeat the trick at the next Farming Congress when the competition will be keener and considerably more extensive.

The City of Edmonton have rented the Presbyterian church for one year and will pay $100 per month for the use of it as a municipal building to house its central departments.

America's Greatest Play

To Be Seen Here

Replete with a magnificent scenic, costume, and electrical equipment. Mrs. E. Lorraine, superb vocalist of "Rip Van Winkle" will be presented at the Open House for one night only on Tuesday, Aug. 27th.

No attraction in years has awakened so much interest in Canada as has this much heralded production. With the exception of Joseph Jefferson no player has enjoyed such a long and brilliant career in "Rip Van Winkle" as has Mr. Chas. J. Conklin, surrounded by a distinguished company of players Mr. Conklin will be seen here in this famous play. Beautiful scenery and costumes as well as brilliant lighting effects will enhance the production to a marked degree. Every detail has been given careful attention and as well as clever child parts for the portrayal of the child parts, an acting dog and cat is carried by the company. All about the tour of "Rip Van Winkle", public, press and clergy have been loud in their praise of the excellent company and superb production and prospects already point to a big audience being present at the Open House on Tuesday evening next to witness a meritorious presentation of "Rip Van Winkle". Seats are now on sale at the Clareholm Pharmacy and intending patrons will do well to make their reservations early.

Having disposed of my interests in Clareholm, I am leaving the town and anyone knowing themselves to be indebted to me are requested to come in and settle their account before Nov. 1st.

CARD OF THANKS

The undersigned wishes to thank the many friends who so liberally gave their help and sympathy during the sickness and death of their son, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Payne.

Five residents of the Hills were presented this week for fishing without license. Intending fishermen should take warning from this and govern themselves accordingly. The only open water in this vicinity for fishing this year is the Old Man River and the Livingston creek and all license necessary for them. All waters around here are closed.

A wedding dance given in honor of the recent marriage of Miss Strangway to Mr. Delbert Reynolds by the parents of the bride at their home last Monday night was attended by over one hundred pleasure seekers and the reports of the good time were very glowing. Refreshments were served at midnight and the guests enjoyed themselves until early morning.

There will not be any service in the Church of St. John next Sunday evening on account of the darkness.

Mrs. Julia A. Berg wishes to thank her relatives and the town council who so kindly helped with donations during the sickness and death of her husband.

Mr. S. O. Bryan, late in the dry goods department of J. M. Soby and Mr. S. J. Prevez, cashier of the Clareholm store, left for New Valley this week on a business trip.

The vote taken under the new Municipality act at Grumm resulted in townships 9, 10, 11, 12, range 27, townships 10, 11, 12, range 26 and townships 10, 11, 12, range 25 being formed into the Municipality of Argyle No. 99. The vote was taken on the 15th, of August, 38 for 27 against. M. R. Mathison, Returning Officer.

J. B. Reeves is responsible for the statement that chief engineer Zink of the Interurban Electric Ry. Co. will be the near future look over the ground for an electric line to run from Clareholm to the City deposits on Mr. S. O. Bryan's place. Mr. Bryan has been named as a director of this Co. with whom is associated four other gentlemen to purchase for the company at Mr. Reeves' own price the remaining 100 acres of his farm in which the clay deposits lie, providing that the road is constructed.

The town is billed this week with advertising matter for the production of "Rip Van Winkle" on next Tuesday night. The play we understand is owned by Mr. Win. Lorraine, who is well known to the Clareholm theatre goers. The fact that he is behind the venture is proof of his excellence and there should be a large audience to greet him on the 27th. Mr. Munro, manager of the opera house, has agreed to furnish gas lights for the production of the play in place of the electric lights, thus furnishing the means of putting on the scenic parts.

Lights Will Be On Soon

We learned that the casting for the engines at the power house had been loaded on the cars last Monday and will no doubt be here about the end of this week. It is thought the lights will be in operation on the first of September which will be fifteen days sooner than was anticipated. It will seem good to have the lights again after so many weeks of darkness. Work was started on the big line this week and a general overhauling of the pipes will be had before the water will be allowed in the tank again.

LATER.—While going to press we looked out of the window and saw the town team going by with the casting loaded on the wagon. This look at the town would lead one to believe that engineer when consulted said that he believed the lights would be shining in a week.

Bang! Bang! Bang!!!

Duck season is on and the number of permits sold at the barracks this week would lead one to believe that the feathered tribe will get a good many sudden frights if nothing worse. The law requires that all residents of cities, towns and villages shall be in possession of a license under penalty of law. This does not apply to farmers, however. As the cost of a license is only $1.25 it is not very much to pay to get your license and be safe. The price will be on anyone who is caught shooting without one.

100 New Rural

Municipal Districts

More than one hundred agricultural communities in the province of Alberta will be organized this year under the Rural Municipality Act, passed by the last legislature and effective in 1913. The department of municipalities affairs has so far received requests for petitions to organize municipalities, and it is anticipated that elections will be held in thirty-five localities this month, and that plebiscites may continue to be taken until November.

Charles Stewart, minister of municipalities affairs, has announced that the affairs of all local improvement districts in the province, whether or not they are to be organized, must be wound up by the coming fall, when an official audit will be made of the books of the authorities. Any balance shown on the debit or credit side will be taken over by the new organization.

The new system provided that taxes shall be levied equally upon all taxable land in the municipality according to the assessed value of the land. The assessment plan is based upon the following provision in the Rural Municipality act:

"Land shall be assessed at its net cash value as it would be payable in payment of a just debt, after a solvent debtor, exclusive of the value of any building erected thereon or of any other increase of value caused by any other expenditure of labor or capital thereon."

The question of taxation is dealt with entirely by the council of the rural municipality. The new act fixes the limit to taxation for municipal purposes at 10 mills on the dollar. It is expected that a rate will be levied to exceed $8 per 100 acre, and in many cases the rate levied will not exceed $3 or $4.

With a view of encouraging the cultivation of farming lands in the province and at the same time discouraging the speculative holdings of large acreages, several important amendments will be brought to the attention of the next legislature. One of these is a recommendation that the present return of 25 per cent of all taxes be increased to 50 per cent. This, it is believed, would have the effect of driving the absentee speculator out of the field. Other amendments would be based on the actual experience of municipalities when the act comes into operation next January.

The act provides that every municipality shall in so far as it is practicable comprise an area of 18 miles square or 288 square miles and all municipalities shall be laid out on a uniform plan of the conditions of the Dominion land survey and the physical features of the province will be allowed.

The minister of municipal affairs may serve any portion of a municipality, annex any municipality not laying area heretofore adjacent to but not included in the limits of any municipality, alter and adjust the boundaries of two or more municipalities or adjacent municipalities, or withdraw from any municipality any area heretofore established as a village area under the provisions of the village act, passed by the legislature in 1907.

John Ferrie, deputy minister of municipal affairs and tax commissioner of Alberta made the following statement at the government building in respect to an inquiry as to the single tax system in the farming district.

"The only taxes levied in the rural districts in this province are those levied on lands. No taxes are levied on improvements or personal property. This method of assessment is a fair one and is satisfactory to the farmers. In fact, any change to a system of taxation which duty improvements or personal property are assessed would be strongly opposed by them. We have already no demand for the tax system being changed so that taxes would be levied on improvements and personal property."

Given Three Years

At the sitting of the district court in Mankild, Monday last, Jas. Bertone, alias Frank Page, alias F. S. Galt, pleaded guilty to having forged the name of Thomas Nagan of Clareholm to three checks and was sentenced to ten years imprisonment on such charges, the sentences to run concurrently.

No One Will Do The Act

Reus, Nevada, Aug. 11.—Warden George W. Cwing of the Nevada State Penitentiary faces the strange situation in his experience as head of the institution. He must find five men to shoot down a man in cold blood before the twentieth of this month. Andrikl Mikolich, a prisoner, duly convicted and sentenced to death for a crime committed in Southern Nevada, was under the new statute of Nevada, given his choice of death either by hanging or shooting. He chose the latter. The execution is set for August 23. Warden Cwing must carry out the sentence upon that date. He has approached many number of men, who have absolutely refused to undertake the job of shooting down a human being. He is at a complete loss as to how to carry out the death sentence.

Cwing stated that he would make an effort to have the matter brought to the attention of the court, while at the same time he has been working upon a condemned man, to change his mind and go to his death upon the gallows. The condemned man refuses. Cwing is facing a situation which has never before come up in the history of the State.

Mikolich, the condemned man, is making passive though it all, if he must die, he wants to be shot. Warden Cwing is at the end of his wit to meet the strange situation.

THE STURDY SWISS

Corruption has been the theme of their Political Campaign.

The story of the election which was held on the 27th of August, 1912, in the town of Clareholm, is a story of the triumph of the sturdy Swiss over the corrupt politicians. The sturdy Swiss, who are the backbone of the community, have been the victims of the corruption of the politicians. ## Then He Bolted.

At a gathering last night, a well-known lieutenant, wishing for a partner, was offered an introduction to a young lady of large proportions. He declined, saying he would just as soon get a cat about the house. The lady, who chanced to be the colonel's daughter, heard the remark and secretly resolved to have her revenge. Later in the evening the young officer discovered the fact of her being the daughter of his chief and thought it well to retract his former refusal, but being presented and solicited the favor of the next walk, he only bowed and said, "I thank you, but I am too heavy a cart or any doctor to draw."

His Nerve.

"By George, but that chap Kirby is independent!" I never before met a man who cared so little for another person's opinion of himself. "Of course," he walked brazenly into a fashionable Broadway haberdasher's and asked to be shown some shirts with detached cuffs.

Seeing Double.

Conductor—"We're traveling in two sections tonight."

Slightly Intoxicated Passenger—"Thank right. Just what I've been trying to tell my friends. Of course, you are, and I can see both sections from my seat."

Practically Mindful.

"Am I required to exchange wedding gifts in the department from which they were purchased?"

"Not at all," said the clerk.

"Thank you, I will then be in exchange a new pair for a trifle, please."

Revenge.

The Millionaire—"Say, you seem to have a private stock of diamonds on that job of fixing me last night."

The Criminal—"You mean you did? You're president of the company that sold me the lot last summer."

A Possible Explanation.

Man—"I wonder why I am so much interested?"

Child—"I can't say. Perhaps he was an incubator baby."

Up to Date.

Showman—"What is the latest and greatest, and see the latest and greatest of a long antediluvian race."

Snakebitten Shoes.

From all reptiles the ordinary woman shrinks in disgust. Yet fashionable women are now being tempted to conquer their aversion to the extent of wearing snakebitten shoes. One of the smartest shops in the West End of London is "Snakebitten" shoes; but up to the present it seems to be uncertain if the fashion will really establish itself on widespread lines.

Choice of outfit a variety of sizes is offered. There is the dark and heavily marked skin of the deadly cobra, or the lighter skin of its deadly cousin, the rattlesnake. The skins of the rattlesnake and the cobra are all the rage.

Snakebitten is very soft, pliable, and durable. The shoes are expensive, of course, for the skins are a top piece of leather. But the dealer should remember that it is smart people, as it seems to be much more difficult to copy the fashion on cheap lines.

The Longevity of Fish.

Fishes and animals that live in the water in many instances attain a great age. The carp has been known to live 200 years. Common roach trout have been known to live for fifty years and some still fishy specimens of the species are in the hands of the dealer. It is said that the oldest fish in the world is a carp which was caught in a lake in the year 1000. It was said to be 100 years old and was said to be 100 years old.

A Cold-Headed Quilter.

An Old Friend

There are friends who come in when thick sorrow's your guest,
To weep with you over your dearest
Friends who seem in the midst of
Your heartaches unmet.
To know just what ought to be said.

But the prince of them all when grim trouble stalks by,
And your heart can do nothing but bleed,
Is the dear friend that comes when there's no one else nigh.
And whispers: "How much do you need?"

Father, bless all the friends I have known,
Who came in the depths of my need,
Just to stand by my side when I felt so alone,
That I might find their sympathy know.

Oh, I kiss everyone for each hand, clasp and cheer,
And say: "I wish them good speed!"

But I crown for the one who when none else was near,
Said softly: "How much do you need?"

Subscription price in advance.

Society after our arrival at this town, being situated where we have a good view of the C. P. R. right of way, we on more than one occasion, witnessed the steady movements of some of the people in the district who, having received parcels at the express office, instead of taking these to their gigs tied near the shops, slipped down the track and tossed the bundles where they could, pick them up on their way home and thus avoid having the feelings of the mechanics who were giving them credit with a more or less risk of not being able to collect their bills for a long, very long period. Some folks are here seen where the mine has been and have been seen where they had been and still were getting goods on credit with their arms full already to overflowing with Eaton's wares. At the post office this week there were at least 17 and perhaps 20 large mail sacks handed to the gawwale with Eaton catalogues. These will be distributed far and wide and in the evenings the members of the household will pore over the 350 pages and reading the wonderful descriptions given therein imagine that they are being offered something that can be obtained nowhere else but from this firm. The readers will not realize that the spot cash price of an article must of necessity differ from the credit, and usually long credit price of the same article. The merchant in the store in our town has stocked up with a great variety and quantity of articles in order to accommodate the buyers who are thus accorded the privilege of seeing what they buy and making a choice whereas in buying from a catalogue house there is no opportunity of making a selection at sight or of exchanging an article after purchasing. In many cases the price charged by the local merchant may not have the inferior quality to sell at the price which the catalogue house advertises but if a similar quality of article be chosen the prices will not materially differ. The fact that the money sent to the catalogue houses goes out of the district and is not returned as the money spent with the local merchant is does not seem to be considered as any particular consequence by the out-of-town buyers. The independence of the farmer and the townsman makes anything that brings property to one react also upon the other. The independent dealer are able in many cases to secure for the purchasers of their bladders, etc., from the whole saler or manufacturer a long credit because the bladder, or whatever it may be, is still in existence and perhaps not so much the worse for wear and as a final resort may be taken back. The goods of the merchant are consumed and the wholesaler having nothing to recover from, is compelled to be more insistent upon the payment by the merchant for the goods supplied. More than this the purchaser of agricultural implements has to protect the dealer by lien notes, etc., while the merchant in many cases giving a much greater credit is unprotected in any way. The smallness of the purchaser of Eaton goods or those of any other catalogue house, for each in his case, when at the same time he is asking his local merchant to carry him on the "foot" system from the largest in another and in case of a few failures which do sometimes happen, for a much longer period, with practically no security, is most aggravating. The inconveniences of long-distance shipping, the frequent instances where one is "strung" in the quality of the article sent from the catalogue house, the manifest unfairness to the local

A BELLE OF POMPEII

SILENT WOMAN UNFATHED BY WORKMEN'S SPACES.

Body of a Famous Beauty Laid Out With Precious Jewels Cleared to the Room to Be Found After Centuries Transferred Where the Eruption of Vesuvius Had Forced—Angrer of the World is Filled.

A group of Neapolitan workmen, daring to preserve the foundation for a new building under the shadow of Vesuvius, were toasting lava chips and stone with the spirit when suddenly the scale of a swartly taller struck something which gave forth a hollow sound. It arrested a suspicion in his mind, for the scene of their work was just outside the mosaic-crown walls of Pompeii, on the side toward Herculaneum. Gladly he repeated the blow, and then very carefully began to scrape away the earth and other material which had from view what he felt sure would prove to be a valuable find.

The single influence of Vesuvius is always felt in the Neapolitan world, for the men who dig it is that beauty can never tell us, it is not wonderful of earth may disclose.

Avoid into silence the other workers gathered about while the excavation finished his delicate task of unearthing the creature so marvelously preserved from decay by the lava. Indeed, earth, clothes—the work of removal went on for a few less minutes and then deep steps creased from the blackened gray level of the earth with rare respectability. Before them lay the body of a beautiful beauty, naked as when she came into the world, yet so having to her long a wonderful collection of jewels, which she had worn when she was buried.

They were amazed at the full in any Pompeii. Splendid and graceful of form, with delicate neck, well-shaped limbs, finger tips that once might have been like palest rose petals—what artist could see this who might, if she could only move those lovely child-like lips or smile, could have so much concerning that life of actual luxury and well-deserving pleasure in which she had reposed.

Tragedy and romance permeated through the ages in stone and lava. No wonder the simple workmen were astonished. With hands almost tender from the influence of their emotion they lifted the figure from its newly resting place, where the beauty of old Pompeii had preserved her face against the bowen of Mother Earth to whom she had turned in her last agonizing terror during that fatal day nearly twenty centuries ago; and as this unearthed tragedy lay on the ground before them, like one man, they bared their heads to The Silent Woman.

The hot ashes which had burned away her robes had left a mark of embalming right royal. Every line of the exquisite figure had been preserved. She seemed almost ready to breathe and speak and raise her hand as if summoning the slaves who died with her. But the hand was not empty. It held bracelets, rings, amulets and a pair of earrings, the like of which cannot be found even in the famed museum of Naples. Each earring represented a rarely formed bunch of it, each earring a pearl, and the whole set in gold.

Silently the supreme workmen guarded the treasure while the Government authorities were notified. The dead clutched these morsels and held them in its grip. Meanwhile, what of this woman who had miserably perished so long ago? What of her life and her loves? From which of the many aristocratic homes within the walls of Pompeii had she fled on that fatal day when Vesuvius belched forth suffocating fumes and smoke, burning forest day after day, and the despairing laughter, and sobbing sobs with awful force.

An aristocrat? Ah, yes, from the tip of her toes to the waves of her tresses, from her shining shoulders to her beautiful face which her body protected from destruction by the flames. No slave, this, nor daughter of an humble shop keeper, but a lady wonderful fair who might have posed for the statues and paintings of Venus in the temple just within the city's gate.

Had she died among the smiling Cupids in the House of the Vestal, or wept and languished with the maids in the House of the Tragic Poet? Had she worshipped at the altar of Isis, or reflected the beauty of Venus, or secretly followed that strange new cult called Christianity, of which old Pompeii made merry jest? Had she been lashed by scyllas and scorpions and jailing in the civic baths which were the Pompeian club, or had she smiled down upon gladiators who wrote of her charms in the graffiti of their barracks walls? Who could say where her beauty fled away and how it worked its will? She who once still clasped to the bosom that once knew every pang of love?

Let the mind picture that last scene in old Pompeii. Vesuvius is angry, but this is not the first time. The earth trembles violently, but this, too, has happened before. The volcanic cone is a giant, and it is not a giant that turns luxuriously in her bed of wood, inlaid with silver and finished with feet of brass. A soft mattress is lashed with pillows and cushions, and set off by the luxury of rich Eastern stuffs. On the opposite wall are painted Cupids and satyrs, and a group of gladiators. Near at hand is a dressing table over which a candleabra hangs, and a small table for the toilette apparatus. The mistress comes to her room, and she is alone. Her maid is gone to the bath. Next her maid, a girl of gentle, shall she be ready, but she is not. It is the first time.
